Section II/A - Let's recognise the real problems!

Moderator: Emma Gombkötő, Gen Z Fest project leader, photojournalist, Portfolio

11:15 - 11:30 Generational change is hanging like a sword over the construction industry's neck - Structural change and organisational development must begin immediately!

Speaker:

Péter Papp, Partner, Flow Consulting Kft.

11:30 - 11:45 Less software, more business. Reinvented construction industry corporate management.

Right now, digital transformation is structured along five key areas in the construction industry: BIM technology, documentation handling, monitoring processes, ensuring mobile access and data asset management. The isolated development of the 5 areas creates a difficult environment, distracting staff from the work that creates value. To decrease software usage time, the five areas must be considered as a whole.

Speaker:

László Varga, Director of Business Development, DMS One Hu

12:00 - 12:45 What can be the key to the rescue and development of an ageing, digitalising, inefficient domestic construction industry that is forced to adopt innovative technologies

14:15 - 14:30 BIM on the top of Budapest - The Citadella Project

The Citadel - a UNESCO World Heritage site - is currently being rebuilt. We applied laser scanning technology, multi-material BIM modelling, and augmented reality to design and support the construction of the 170-year-old structure. In this presentation we will demonstrate how an abandoned fortress became a LOD450 model thanks to Trimble solutions.

Speakers:

Dezső Ágoston, CBO, ARC-S Group Kft.

Lilla Makkos, Senior manager, TEKLA products, Construsoft Kft.

14:30 - 14:45 A new perspective in the construction industry!

Innovative monitoring technologies open new dimensions in the construction industry as key tools, making it possible for project managers to monitor and manage their projects in real time, remotely.

Thus, they can significantly improve efficiency and minimise risks. The introduction of these technologies signifies a paradigm shift, facilitating faster and more cost-effective project implementation, enhancing workplace safety, and simplifying transparency and monitoring. This change is an opportunity for the construction industry to redefine the concept of project management through the use of new technologies, encouraging a more efficient and safer working environment.

Stay with us after the technical programme, join us in cheering the candidates and toasting the winner of the Construction Industry Person of the Year award at the standing reception!

We will contribute to setting a fantastic ambiance with gourmet snacks and a colourful selection of drinks. Thanks to Layher, we will open our popular Gin&Tonic bar again, where our gin masters will offer the most special gins, spices, and premium tonics to our guests. Market will bring Yama Sushi bar's exotic offer to the conference, for which Kreinbacher's champagne selection will be available. Lifer Bau will provide us with a doughnut wall and Lindab with a special rum offer.

Throughout the day, you can immerse yourself in a variety of VR experiences. Stay with us until the end of the evening, and let us celebrate together again!
